The Laids of Ballochyle, both as McIvers and as Campbells, possessed for several generations the beautiful lands of Kilbride, on Loch Fyne, about three miles from Inverary, close to Pennymore (also formerly possessed by a McIver), and opposite Strachur, but now in the possession of the Duke of Argyll. It is conjectured, from documents in the Ballochyle Charter Chest, that it was during the Lairdship of Charles Campbell of Ballochyle, about the middle of the 17th century, that the lands of Kilbride passed into the hands of the Argyll family; there is also a tradition in the family that the Marquess of Argyll, the then chief of the Campbells (named Gillesbuig Erumach, or Archibald the Grim), who was beheaded at Edinburgh, 27 May, 1661, gave the Ballochyles certain lands in Cowal, taking in exchange those of Kilbride.

IVER McIVER, of Dergachie (which adjoins, and is now incorporated with Ballochyle), who is on record as the representative of the family in 1445 and 1481, had two sons, John of Dergachie, his successor, and Alexander, of Kilbride, who had two sons, Archibald of Kilbride (Loch Fyne), and Iver-McAlister Viciver, who became proprietor of Ballochyle on the death of his cousin, Iver MacIain, and left two sons, Charles, of Ballochyle, who succeeded to the representation of the family, and Alexander.

JOHN McIVER of Dergachie, the elder son, was s. by his only son,

IVER MACIAN VICIVER, who, in 1542, acquired the lands of Ballochyle and Stronsaul, but dying without issue, between 1559 and 1563, was s. in the representation of the family by Archibald MacIver of Kilbride, elder son of his uncle Alexander MacIver, of Kilbride, and in his property of Ballochyle by Iver, his uncle Alexander's younger son.

ARCHIBALD (GILLESPIE-McALISTER-VICIVER) of Kilbride, obtained a new charter of Kilbride from Colin Campbell of Glenorchy, the Superior in 1561; he was s. by his only son,

JOHN IAN-McGILLESPIE-VICALISTER-VICIVER of Kilbride, who having, it is presumed, no male issue, resigned Kilbride in 1572, in favour of his cousin, the heir male and representative of the family, Charles McIVER of Ballochyle, failing whom to Alexander, brother of the said Charles.

CHARLES McIVER of Ballochyle s. his cousin John in Kilbride, and in his representation of the family in 1572, or soon after. He had two sons,

1 ALEXANDER.

IVER McIVER or CAMPBELL of Ballochyle and Kilbride, 2nd son and successor of Alexander, appears to have been the last of the family who possessed Kilbride. In 1658 he resigned Ballochyle, with the adjacent lands, in favour of his brother Charles. He d. s. p., and was s. by

CHARLES CAMPBELL of Ballochyle, who on 11 Aug. 1658, obtained a charter from Archibald, Marquess of Argyll, his chief, for the lands of Ballochyle, &c. He d. before 1674, and appears to have had two sons,

Charles was s. by his son,

CASSIDI OF GLENBROOK.

CASSIDI, FRANCIS PETER, Esq. of Glenbrook, near Magherafelt, co. Derry, J.P., late of the 34th regt., retired Col. of the army, m. 2 June, 1853, Maria Lucy Anne, 4th dau. of the late Matthew Hayman, Esq. of South Abbey, Youghal, and has issue,

- I. Helen Heyman Henrietta.
- II. Mary Mortimer.

Col. Cassidi served with his regiment during the Indian Mutiny, and was severely wounded at the battle of Cawnpore, 26 Nov. 1857.

Lineage.—The very ancient Celtic family of Ua Calside, or O'Cassidy, has been for ages seated in the co. Fermanagh, where the village of Ballycassidy, adjacent to Enniskillen, yet locally preserves the name. Their territory was called Cuil-na-n-Oirear, i.e., the corner or angle of harbours, situated on the eastern shore of the Upper Loch Erne, immediately opposite some beautiful islets, whose indentations form the miniature haven that gave the place its title. It is now called The Barony of Coole. The Ua Calside were hereditary ollaves in medicine, or state physicians of the Maguires, the olden monarchs of Fermanagh; and they held their district, ex officio, according to the laws of tanistry. Notices of the clan abound in The Annals of the Four Masters. In 1143 died Gilla Moduda O'Cassidy, Abbot of Ardrecon. He was author of a list of Kings of Ireland from the introduction of Christianity to A.D. 1022. This poem is preserved in the Book of Lecan, fol. 312. In 1322, Fíneen O'Cassidy, of Coole, Chief Physician of Fermanagh, died. He was s. by Gilla-na-m-Angel O'Calside, who d. 1335. Teige, son of Joseph O'Calside, of Coole, ollav of Fermanagh, d. 1450. Five years after we find the obit. of Dermot ruadh, son of Niel ruadh, of Coole. In 1490, The O'Cassidy of Coole died. In 1504, we have the death of Pierce MacThomas O'Cassidy, of Coole; and of him The Four Masters tell us that he was "ollav to Maguire in physic" and "a man truly learned in literature and medical science," and further that he "had kept an open house for hospitality." In 1520, Felim O'Cassidy, son of Teige, ollav to the race of Philip Maguire, died. In 1541, died Boderick Cassidy, Archdeacon of Clogher, eminently versed (as Sir James Ware informs us) in the historical records of his country. Besides having written part of the Register of Clogher, he also compiled the latter part of "The Annals of Ulster." Among inquiries in the Exchequer, is one taken at Ballycassidy, co. Fermanagh, 21 Sept. 1630, respecting "Cornack O'Cashedy." At this time the family had branched out widely in the counties of Fermanagh, Louth, and Monaghan; and to one of these scions we refer.

HENRY O'CASSIDY, Esq., M.D., who had followed his ancestral pursuits in medicine, was of Greatwood, Mullaghbawn, and Drumkirk, co. Louth, and of various estates in the co. Monaghan. He was b. circa 1650. We find, 10 April, 1690, that King JAMES II. issued a commission to him, in conjunction with the High Sheriffs of the co. Monaghan pro tem. and five others (mostly military persons) to make an applotment upon their county for £1,052 4s. for three months. Dr. O'Cassidy had issue, with others,

Mr. Cassidy's last will was dated 6 July, 1753, and was proved 5 March, 1757. Among other directions, he desired "to be buried in my tomb at Carrick McCross." His youngest son,

Lineage.—The family of BALDWIN, which eventually assumed the name of CHILDE, through an heiress, was, at a very remote period, seated at Diddlebury, more recently Delbury, Coverdale, co. Salop. The lineal male descendant of this ancient house,

GEORGE FITZ BAWDEWIN, son of Bawdewin de Brugge (or "of Bridgenorth,") had the manor of Kingsmeade, co. York, and was grandfather of ROGER BALDWIN, d. in or not long before the year 1398. This Roger is presumed to be the first of the family who obtained Dodelebury, for his wife Jane, was dau. and heiress of William de Wigley, by Alice le Childe, whose great-grandfather, John L'Enfant, or the Child, is stated to have m. Emblema, dau. and co-heir of Richard Acheley, the younger, of that place.

WILLIAM BALDWIN, of Diddlebury, grandson of Roger, had passed the middle age of his life in 1458, for he then bestowed his lands in Manslow upon his son,

JOHN BALDWIN, and Elizabeth his wife. Their son, JOHN BAWDEWIN, Yeoman of the Crown, living in 1491, was father of

WILLIAM BAWDEWIN, Cup Bearer to Queen MARY. and was living in 1576, when Sir Henry Compton, Knt., Lord Compton, granted to him, by the name of William Baldwin, of Diddlebury, Gentleman, the manor and advowson of Kyre Wyard, in co. Worcester. He d. without issue, and was s. by his brother,

RICHARD BALDWIN, m. 7 Nov. 1545, Margery, dau. of Lawrence Ludlow, of Moore House, in Coverdale, and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS BALDWIN, b. 1546, who, like his grandfather and uncle, spent many of his years within the circuit of a Court, as agent to the Earl of Shrewsbury, then engaged in the dangerous office of guarding the Scottish Queen. In Lodge's "Illustrations," vol. ii., p. 234, is a letter signed "T. Bawdewyn," and directed to the Earl of Shrewsbury, 1 July, 1580. It informs his Lordship that ELIZABETH is resolute against his going to Chatsworth with Queen MARY. In a room in Beauchamp's Tower, in the Tower of London, were discovered some years ago, a number of inscriptions, chiefly made with nails, and all of them the autographs of the unfortunate individuals who thus endeavoured to beguile for a time the tedious hours of confinement. Among them is one which runs thus:—

1585. THOMAS BAWDEWIN. JULL.
AS VERTUE MAKETH LIFE
SO SIN CAWSETH DEATH.

To which is added a representation of a pair of scales, evidently intimating the writer's confidence in his own integrity and desire to obtain justice. This person, there is no doubt, was the Thomas Baldwin above mentioned. His epitaph, still remaining at Diddlebury, records his escape from the sea, the sword, and the cruel tower. The issue of his confinement is supplied by a passage in the pedigree—"Thomas Bawdewin, Esq. of Diddlebury, by the privie counsell of Queen ELIZABETH, appointed as . . . (here is a blank) for the affayres of MARY Queen of Scots and George, Earl of Salop, after three years' imprisonment in the Tower, m. Bertran (this should be Gertrude), dau. of Robert Corbett, Esq. of Stanwardine." After his liberation, he adopted a motto from the Psalmist, piously ascribing the event to a merciful Providence:—Per Deum meum transiit murum. And it seems most probable, that, when released, he quitted the dangerous vortex of a Court, and retired to his paternal estate in Coverdale, where he d. at a good old age, in Oct. 1614, and where his posterity continued, for five generations, until Richard Bawdewin sold the Diddlebury estate to Frederick Cornwall, Esq., Capt. R.N., father of Bishop of Worcester.

WILLIAM BALDWIN, second brother of Thomas Bawdewin, the prisoner, was of Elsieh, in the parish of Diddlebury. The family name had hitherto been written indiscriminately, but from this point of divergence, the two branches chose to distinguish themselves by a different mode of spelling. William's son,

CHARLES BALDWIN, Esq., was b. 1593, and in the troubles which marked the earlier part of the ensuing century, strenuously supported the royal cause. He represented the town of Ludlow in the Long Parliament, until he was disabled (5 Feb. 1643), for deserting (as the term was) the service of the House, being in the King's quarters, and adhering to that party. He m. 1617, one of the daus. and co-heirs of Francis Holland, of Burwarton, in co. Worcester, but left no issue.

CHISHOLME OF THAT ILK AND STIRCHES.

SCOTT-CHISHOLME, JOHN JAMES, Esq. of that ilk and Stirches, co. Roxburgh, Lieut. 9th Lancers, s. his father 1868.

Lineage.—The genealogy of this old Border family, with their designation of that ilk, is very clearly authenticated by their own and the public records.

Chisholme, their original seat, is situated in the western district of co. Roxburgh; it was formerly in the old deanery of Teviotdale and diocese of Glasgow. The family are of Anglo-Norman origin. "They came," says Malcolm, "soon after the Conquest, from Tindale in England. The original name is said to have been De Chesé, to which the Saxon termination holme was added on the marriage of the Norman ancestor with a Saxon heiress, whose lands from situation, were so called." In the early records of the family, the name is written De Cheséholme; in later times, De Cheselme vel Chesholme; and eventually Chisholme.

The earliest documentary evidence, now extant, relating to the family, is a Bull of Pope ALEXANDER IV., in which John De Chisholme is named, anno 1254. About the same period he acquired, by marriage with the Norman family of De Vetereponte, the lands of Paxton, in the adjoining co. of Berwick; for, in the reign of ALEXANDER III., William De Vetereponte Lord of Bolton, grants a charter of these lands, with the fishings of Brade-la-Tweed, and pendules in the village of Paxton, with the fishings and pertinents belonging thereto, to John De Chesholme, and to Emma De Vetereponte, his spouse. From that period down to the present time, the history of the family is clearly established. John was s. by

RICHARD DE CHESHOLME, who soon after the commencement of the succession wars, submitted, with John, his son, afterwards Sir John, to EDWARD I., 1296, as appears by the Ragman Roll. He was s. by his son,

JOHN DE CHISHOLME, who became an adherent of ROBERT BRUCE, with whom he was present at the battle of Bannockburn, and, in consequence of his defection, was forfeited by EDWARD II. Sir John m. Anne, dau. and heiress of Sir Robert Lauder, of Quarrelwood, Constable of Urquhart Castle. Through this marriage the name was introduced into the north of Scotland, and established there by a member of the family, who m. Margaret De La Ard, co-heiress of the Ard, in the co. of Inverness. Sir John was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE CHESHOLME, who was knighted, and taken prisoner with DAVID II. at the battle of Durham, 1346. At the death of his maternal grandfather, Sir Robert succeeded, in right of his mother, to the Lauder estates, in the cos. Moray and Nairn; and, 1357, he was appointed by DAVID II. Constable of Urquhart Castle and Sheriff of Inverness. He had three sons and one dau. The eldest son, ROBERT CHISHOLME, also styled Sir Robert, s. his father in 1384. He m. Margaret, dau. of Haliburton, of that ilk, co. Berwick, by whom he had two sons, JOHN, who s. him, but dying without male issue, the estates devolved upon his brother, JOHN, the eldest, succeeded him.

Edmund, the youngest, founded the family of CROMLIX, in the co. of Perth.

The eldest son and successor,

JOHN CHESHOLME, of that ilk, was father of ROBERT CHISHOLME, Baron of Chesholme, whose youngest son and eventual successor to the representation,

GEORGE CHISHOLME, of that ilk, engaged, with Scott of Buccleuch and other border chieftains, at the instigation of James V., to relieve him from under the iron tutelage of the Earl of Angus, and after the battle of Melrose 1526, in which they were defeated, was, with the principal chieftains, forfeited. On the accession of JAMES V., the forfeited chieftains obtained remission, and George Chisholme had a charter of the lands of Chisholme, Chisholme Middon, Mouslie, Woodburn, Merryneir, &c., dated at Edinburgh, 12 Nov. 1531. He had four sons and two daus. His eldest son and successor,

WALTER CHISHOLME, infest in the estate 13 March, 1538, was a loyal subject to Queen MARY, and was actively engaged in her cause during the civil wars of that unhappy period. He d. 1588, and was s. by the elder of his two sons,

He was s. by his only son, Charles, who d. without issue in 1824, when the estate devolved on his cousin, Scott, of Coldhouse, co. Lineage.—The precise period when the first ancestor of the family of Clifton seated himself at Clifton, in Lancashire, cannot be ascertained. The most probable conjecture is, that either Roger de Poitou, or Herveus, the great grantees of the Crown, bestowed part of their vast possessions upon their officers and followers, to be holden of them, or of their superior lords. One of these officers may reasonably be presumed to have seated himself at Clifton, and, in conformity to the almost invariable practice of those times, acquired his patronymic of Clifton from the place of his residence. The first person whose name occurs on authentic record is,

WILLIAM DE CLIFTON, who held ten carucates of land in the hundred of Amoundernes, 42 HENRY III., A.D. 1257. His son,

GILBERT DE CLIFTON, who, during part of the reigns of HENRY III. and EDWARD I., executed the office of Seneschal to Henry de Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, Lord of Clithero and Blackburnshire, &c., served the office of Sheriff of co. Lancaster in the years 1278, 1286, 1287, 1289, and d. 17 EDWARD II., A.D. 1323. His eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM DE CLIFTON, was elected Knight of the Shire in September, 1302, jointly with Gilbert de Singleton; and again in 1304, with William de Banastre. By his wife, Elen, he was father of his successor,

SIR WILLIAM DE CLIFTON, Knt., m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Robert Shireburn, Knt., and was s. at his decease, in 1365, by his son,

SIR NICHOLAS DE CLIFTON, Knt., who served in the wars in France, and was appointed Governor of the Castle of Ham in Picardy, by letters patent, 14 Jan. 7 RICHARD II., A.D. 1383. He m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir Thomas West, Knt. of Snitterfield, co. Warwick, and was father of

ROBERT DE CLIFTON, Knight of the Shire for co. Lancaster in 1382, whose eldest son,

THOMAS CLIFTON, was in the retinue which accompanied HENRY V. to France in 1415 (see NICOLAS'S History of the Battle of Agincourt, p. 278). He d. in 1442, leaving by his wife Agnes, dau. of Sir Richard Molyneux, Knt. of Sephton, a son, his successor,

CLIFTON OF CLIFTON.

CLIFTON, HENRY ROBERT, Esq. of Clifton Hall, co. Nottingham, J.P., High Sheriff 1875, b. 30 Dec. 1832; m. 6 Dec. 1860, Elizabeth, dau. of the Rev. William MacBean, Rector of St. Peter's, Tavy, Devon. Mr. Clifton assumed the name and arms of CLIFTON, in Aug. 1863, on succeeding to the estates of his cousin, Sir Robert Juckes Clifton, Bart.

Lineage.—The surname of this ancient family is derived from the village of Clifton, near Nottingham, so called from its situation upon an elevated plateau above a cliff of red sandstone, which rises abruptly from the banks of the river Trent. According to Thoroton, the Historian of Nottinghamshire, the manors of Clifton and Wilford were purchased from the family of de Rhodes, about the latter end of the reign of King HENRY III., by

SIR GERVASE DE CLIFTON, Knt., to whom the purchase was confirmed by King EDWARD I., in 1281. This Sir Gervase was appointed Sheriff of the cos. of Nottingham and Derby in 1279, and held that office for seven years, and in 1286 he was constituted Sheriff of Yorkshire, and so continued for six years. During his shrievalty he was committed to gaol upon the complaint of John de Carleton, for making a false return to a writ. He m. Amflicia, dau. of Sir William Sampson, Knt. of Epperston, co. Nottingham, and d. in 1324, having had issue, a son,

GERVASÉ DE CLIFTON, sometimes styled de Glapton, from an estate which he acquired through his marriage with Alicia, dau. and co-heir of Robert de Rabacy, of Glapton, co. Nottingham. He d. during his father's lifetime, leaving a son,

SIR ROBERT DE CLIFTON, Knt., of Clifton, who was 25 years of age at the time of his grandfather's death. He m. Emma, dau. of Sir William Moton, Knt., and d. in 1327. His great-grandson, Nottingham, and sister and co-heir of Sir Hugh Cressy, Knt., and thus acquired a considerable augmentation of property. He represented the co. of Nottingham in Parliament, and was killed at the battle of Shrewsbury, 21 July, 1403. By Catherine his wife (who survived him, and was afterwards m. to Ralph Mackarell) he left issue,

SIR GERVASE CLIFTON, Knt. of Clifton and Hodsock, who d. 8 Dec. 1453, and was buried near to the sepulchre of Dame Catherine his mother, in the Priory Church, at Blyth. He m. Isabella, dau. of Sir Robert Francis, Knt., who d. 13 June, 1457, and was buried at Clifton. Their son and successor,

SIR ROBERT CLIFTON, Knt. of Clifton and Hodsock, was 30 years of age at the time of his father's death. He m. Alice, dau. of John Booth, of Barton, co. Lancaster, and sister of William and Lawrence Booth, both Archbishops of York, which lady d. 9 Sept. 1470. This Sir Robert Clifton commenced the foundation of a college, or chantry, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, at Clifton, but d. 9 April, 1478, before his design could be carried into effect, but his pious intentions were religiously performed by his son,

SIR GERVASE CLIFTON, Knt. of Clifton and Hodsock, who executed the office of Sheriff of the cos. of Nottingham and Derby in 1471, and again in 1477, and was Receiver-General of those counties. He was likewise an Esquire of the Body to King EDWARD IV., and was made a Knight of the Bath at the coronation of King RICHARD III. He was twice married: 1st to Alice, dau. of Thomas Nevile, of Rolleston, co. Nottingham, and widow of Richard Thurland, of the same co. (whose monumental effigy yet remains in the north transept of Clifton church), and 2ndly, to Agnes, dau. of Robert Constable, of Flamborough, co. York, and widow of Sir Walter Griffith, Knt. Sir Gervase d. 12 May, 1491, having had issue, by his 1st wife, nine sons, of whom Robert, the eldest, appears to have been in holy orders, so that the family estates devolved upon the second son,

SIR GERVASE CLIFTON, Knt. of Clifton and Hodsock, who was twice married, 1st, to Agnes, dau. of Sir Walter Griffith, Knt.; and 2ndly, to Joanna, dau. of John Bussy, of Hougham, co. ELINOR MARY BICKFORD.

Lineage.—In passing by the banks of the River Torridge, towards the parish of Black Torrington, Devon, the dwelling of Coham, with owners of its own name, comes in view. It is not known when its possessors did not dwell there, they having possessed it from time immemorial. The name denotes Saxon origin—ham, a Saxon word, signifying "a home" or "dwelling-place," surrounded by wood, water, and fields, just as Coham is situated; but the family can only prove their home at this place from the year 1547, and this proof is derived from the Black Torrington parish register, where the following entry may be seen: "Margaret, dau. of Stephen Coham, Gentleman, of Coham, was baptised April 4th, 1547," an extract from the earliest register extant in the parish chest. We find this Stephen Coham succeeded by Stephen Coham, the father of Lewis Coham, Esq. of Coham, living in the beginning of the 17th century. To this gentleman succeeded, LEWIS COHAM, Esq. of Coham, who m. 22 Dec. 1669, Mary, the sister of John Arscott, Esq. of Tetcott, near Holsworthy (who s. the John Arscott who m. Gertrude, dau. of Sir Shilston Calmady, but left no family), by whom he had three sons and two daus.,

The services for which he was awarded the Victoria Cross are reported in a dispatch of the late Admiral Lord Lyons as follows, "Whilst serving as Junior Lieut. of the 'Miranda,' this officer landed in the presence of a superior force, and set fire to the Russian stores at Genitchi," and "he also performed a similar desperate service at Taganrog."

The first service referred to occurred after the shelling of the town of Genitchi, on the 29th of May, 1855. After mentioning the stores were in a very favourable position for supplying the Russian army, and their destruction was of the utmost importance, the late Capt. E. M. Lyons, who was in command of the 'Miranda,' wrote, 'Lieut. Cecil W. Buckley, Lieut. Hugh T. Burgoyne, and Mr. John Roberts, gunner, volunteered to land alone and fire the stores, which offer I accepted, knowing the imminent risk there would be in landing a party in presence of such a superior force out of gunshot of the ships. This very dangerous service they most gallantly performed, narrowly escaping the Cossacks, who all but cut them off from their boats.' The second volunteer service was performed while the town of Taganrog was being bombarded by the boats of the fleet, and is thus recorded by Capt. Lyons, 'Lieut. Cecil Buckley, in a four-oared gig, accompanied by Mr. Henry Cooper, boatswain, and manned by volunteers, repeatedly landed and fired the different stores and government buildings. This dangerous, not to say desperate service carried out in a town containing upwards of 3,000 troops, was most effectually performed.'

Lincage.—Several writers on heraldry identify the name of DAUNT with that of DAUNTRE, which occurs on the roll of Battle Abbey. Glover and others assign to Daunt of Gloucester the arms which Gwillim assigns to Dauntre, viz., sa., three beacons with ladders or, the flames ppr. These arms are also appropriated to Daunt of Gloucester, in a very ancient MS. in Ulster's office. SIMON DAUNT, living in co. Gloucester, circa 1380, was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

Having espoused the Lancastrian side in the wars of the Roses, he was called on by Prince Edward, son of King HENRY VI. and Margaret of Anjou, to aid the House of Lancaster in resisting Edward IV. The following is a copy of the Prince's letter to John Daunt:—

"Trusty and well-beloved, Wee greet yowe well; acquaint-yowe that this day wee be arrived at Waymoth in safety, blessed be our Lorde, and at our landing we have knowledge that the King's great rebell Edward, Earl of March, approacheth him in armes towards the King's highness; which Edward we propose, with God's grace, to encounter with all haste possible. Wherefore wee hartely pray yowe, and in the King's name charge yowe, that yowe incontinent after the sight hereof, come to us wheresoever wee be, with all such fellowship as yowe can make in your most defensible aray, as our trust is that yowe will do.

"Written at Waymoth aforesaid, the xiii day of April, [1471].

"Moreover wee will that yowe charge the Bayliffe of mêr rûn Edton to make all the people there come in their beste aray to us, in all haste, and that the said Bayliffe bring with him the rent for our Lady Day last past, and hee nor the tenants fayle not, as hee intends to have our favour.

iii. George Leslie.

Lineage.—The family of De la Cherois descends from the younger branch of an ancient and noble house in France, formerly resident at Cheroi or Cherois, a small town near Sens, in the province of Champagne, whence the family name is derived.

The Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, in the year 1685, compelled the De la Cherois, being Protestants, to leave their native country. In the year 1641,

CAPT. SAMUEL DE LA CHEROIS (ancestor of the branch of the family settled in Ireland) served in the war undertaken by Cardinal Richelieu against the House of Austria. He left three sons, Daniel, Nicholas, and Bourjonval. Daniel remained at home. Nicholas embraced the military profession, and was made a Capt. of Fusiliers by Louis XIV. 1677. In the year 1685, these brothers fled to Holland, where they were received with great kindness by the Stadtholder, into whose service they entered, obtaining commissions in the Dutch army of the same rank as those they had held in that of France. In 1669, WILLIAM, Prince of Orange, being called to the throne of Great Britain, formed several regiments of French Huguenots, in one of which Nicholas de la Cherois was appointed Major, Daniel, Captain, and Bourjonval, Lieutenant, who was killed at Dunganon, in an engagement with the enemy, unm. They accompanied King WILLIAM to Ireland 1690, and finally settled there. The second son,

MAJOR NICHOLAS DE LA CHEROIS, distinguished himself at the battle of the Boyne, and afterwards performed a very gallant action, making fifteen hundred men lay down their arms with only a Subaltern's guard, for which he was presented by the Government with fifteen hundred crowns and a Lieutenant-Colonelcy. Lineage.—The Crommelins, though established in France and possessed of considerable property at Armandcourt, in Picardy, for more than a century before the Revocation of the

Edict of Nantes, came originally from the Low Countries. ARMAND CROMMELIN resided on his estate, near Courtrai, in the reign of CHARLES V.; but, in consequence of the persecutions of the Protestants by Alva, in the reign of PHILIP II., his family left, and his son, JEAN, settled at St. Quentin, and became Seigneur de Camas, through his marriage with Marie, dau. of Jacques de Semery. "Ce mariage fut célébré à Follembourg, château royal entre Chauny et Coucy, le 17 Déc. 1595, honoré de la présence de Madame Catherine de France, sœur du roi HENRI IV., qui y tenoit sa cœur." Of this marriage were three sons, PIERRE, JEAN, and ADRIEN. Two of Jean de Camas' grandsons, named Jaques and Adrien, received patents of nobility from Louis XIV.; and others became Seigneurs de Mézières, Senandcourt, Armandcourt, and de Bersy. At the Revocation, almost all this family fled to Holland; and, in 1698, the eldest son, Louis, with two brothers and three sisters, and several cousins and members of his family, "was induced" by King WILLIAM III. of England to go over to Ireland, where they settled at Lisburn, co. Antrim, bringing with them a number of tradesmen and a capital of £20,000, with which they established the linen manufacture, which was adopted by the natives, and has flourished ever since. In consideration of Louis having spent £10,000 on its establishment, King WILLIAM, who was much interested in its success, conferred on him a pension of £200 a year for the life of his son, on whose early death it was discontinued. SIR JOHN LISLE, Knt., Lord of Wodyton and Thrupton. When, in May, 1520, the Emperor CHARLES V. arrived suddenly in the harbour of Hithe, Sir John Lisle was sent by HENRY VIII. to meet him, and to conduct him in state to Canterbury, where the two sovereigns met and remained four days. Sir John Lisle then accompanied HENRY VIII. to France, where he entered the lists of the celebrated tournaments of the Field of the Cloth of Gold, as one of the twenty-one knights chosen to represent, on that occasion, the chivalry of England. Sir John Lisle m. the dau. and heiress of Sir John Courtenay, Knight Banneret, and d. 1524, without issue. The elder branch, therefore, of the Lisles became extinct in him. We must now go back to

At the Restoration, 1660, a price being set on his head, he left the kingdom, and lived in retirement in Switzerland; but being traced to Vevay, he was assassinated at Lausanne, 1667, as it was supposed by some Court emissary. He had m. Alice, dau. and heiress of Sir White Becansaw, Knt., of Moyles Court, Hants. This lady was a staunch Royalist, and exceedingly regretted the political views of her husband. When John Lisle fled to the Continent, she accompanied him, but after his assassination she returned to England, and she continued living at Moyles Court with her daughters. Her only son was in the King's army. Unfortunately for her, two Dissenters, after the battle of Sedgemoor, took refuge at Moyles Court, where she gave them shelter. Being discovered, she was brought to trial under the infamous Judge Jeffries, and by his orders, at the age of 80, was beheaded, 2 Sept. 1685. Her property was confiscated, but after the Revolution, 1688, was restored to her son. By her, John Lisle had issue,

RORY O'DOINN, Chief of Hy-Regain, d. according to the Annals of the Four Masters, A.D. 1427. The descent of the various branches of this sept, O'DOINN, DOYNE, and DUNNE, was preserved in a pedigree deposited in the library of St. Isidore, Rome, by a member of the family who was a clergyman of the Church of Rome in the early part of the 17th century, which is now among the Archives of the Franciscan Convent, Merchants Quay, Dublin. The son of this chieftain,

James Dundas, of Dundas, was born Chief of Dundas, his father dying before his birth.

Lineage.—"The Dundases," says Lord Woodhouselee, in the Transactions of the Royal Society, "are descended of a family to which the historian and the genealogist have assigned an origin of high antiquity and splendour, but which has been still more remarkable for producing a series of men eminently distinguished for their public services in the highest offices in Scotland." The Dundases are generally believed to have sprung from the DUNBARS, Earls of March, who derived descent from the Saxon Princes of England.

SERLE DE DUNDAS, frequently mentioned in the affairs of Scotland, temp. King WILLIAM THE LION, d. early in the next reign, and from him we pass over nine generations, amongst the chiefs of which we find staunch adherents of WALLACE and BRUCE, to his descendant,

Some short period before the King's decease, Dundas received a letter from His Majesty, announcing the royal intention of conferring upon him the Earldom of Forth, but the monarch's unexpected death in battle prevented the fulfilment of the promise. Lineage.—The name, originally Del Dykes, is derived from the two lines of Roman Wall in Brugh, from whence the family at a remote period originated. Rameries de Dikes, who lived before the reign of HENRY II. (chart. Lanercost), is the first supposed ancestor.

ROBERT DEL DYKES grants, by a deed without date, lands at Burgh; the name in it however, of Sir Hugh de Mutton, fixes the time at end of HENRY III., or beginning of EDWARD I.

WILLIAM DEL DYKES conveys, in a deed, also without date, supposed by the writing to be that of HENRY III. or EDWARD I., lands at Waverton to William del Dykes, witness the Lord Hugh de Benton (Sheriff) and others. He was father of

WILLIAM DEL DYKES, who, temp. EDWARD II., m. Agneta, heiress of Sir Hugh de Waverton, of Waverton. In 5 EDWARD III. is a conveyance of lands at Waverton to John de Ormeby, Agnet de Dykes, and their heirs. Besides this dau., m. to John de Ormeby, they had a son,

WILLIAM DEL DYKES temp. EDWARD III. His name appears as witness in a deed of 12 EDWARD III. He was father of

WILLIAM DEL DYKES, temp. RICHARD II., m. Jane, dau. and co-heir of Sir Hugh de Dystington, of Dystington. His son,

WILLIAM DEL DYKES, m. temp. HENRY IV., Catherine, dau. of William Thwaytes, of Thwaytes, and had, with two daus., one m. to Nicholas de Irton of Irton, and another, Isabel, m. Robert Brisco, of Crofton, a son,

WILLIAM DEL DYKES, of Wardhall, temp. HENRY VI., who represented the county in Parliament. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of William de Leigh of Isel. In a French genealogical publication this William del Dykes is mentioned as being wounded on the Lancastrian side at the battle of Wakefield. His son and successor, general pardon by warrant from the Crown under the Great Seal, which is still preserved amongst the family papers. He m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. and co-heir of John Frecheville, of Staveley, uncle of John, Lord Frecheville, and had a dau. m. Lawson Irton, of Threlkeld. He was succeeded by the son of his first marriage,

THOMAS DYKES, of Wardhall, a devoted Royalist. After the defeat of his party he concealed himself for sometime in a mulberry tree near his house, where food was conveyed to him by his wife and dau. (the tree is still in existence). He eventually fell into the hands of the republicans, and was imprisoned in Cocker-mouth Castle. When offered his property and liberty if he would recant, his reply was "Prius frangitur quam fectitur," since adopted as the family motto. He m. 1628, Joyce Frecheville, dau. and co-heir of John Frecheville, uncle of Lord Frecheville, of Staveley, and 2ndly, Jane, dau. and heir of Ralph de la Vale, 1649. He had by his 1st wife a dau., m. Thomas Curwen, Esq. of Workington, and a son,

LEONARD DYKES, of Wardhall, who temp. CHARLES II., m. Grace, dau. of John Salkeld, of Threapland. He was twice Sheriff of Cumberland. Ralph Thoresby, on a visit to Cumberland in Sept. 1694, relates that Mr. and Mrs. Salkeld, with whom he was staying, had invited a considerable muster of the clergy and gentry to meet him, "one of the most important being Squire Dykes, of Warthole, the owner of the handsome new house Thoresby had passed on his way from Talentire, and who, in reply to Thoresby's admiring comments, would state that it had been erected by himself from a design of Inigo Jones. Thereupon would naturally arise the story respecting the old mulberry tree, so conspicuous in front of the mansion, in which his father had secreted himself when sought for by hostile Roundheads." His son,

FRECHEVILLE DYKES, of Wardhall, m. 1697, Jane, eldest sister of Sir Gilfrid Lawson, Bart., of Brayton, and had issue, with two other sons, Frecheville, a Capt. in the navy, lost at sea, Gilfrid Lawson, and a dau. Jane, m. John Ballantine, Esq., of Crookdale Hall, a son and successor,
